A NEW MUSICBOOK, ON THE
New York Musical Review.

FOR NOTHING.
We have in press and shall publish in October, "A SINGING BOOK," a new collection of Church Music for Singing Schools and Chorus, by Dr. Lowell
Mason. Dr. Mason's last musical work, published in 1854, reached the enormous sale of one hundred thousand copies, which is, we are confident, the largest sale ever achieved by any musical work. The work now in press will embrace nearly all new music collected with great care from numerous sources, such as it is believed will be of the highest interest to Chorus and Singing Schools. Its Singing School Department is more extensive and complete than in any previous work, being indeed, a complete work in itself, and forming an extensive collection of secular music, the words, as well as music, to which are nearly all quite
new. Retail price, one dollar.

We publish, also, THE NEW YORK
MUSICAL REVIEW, a fortnightly journal of external quarto pages, including four pages of choice music, each number, with twelve pages of reading matter, including frequent articles from the leading musicians of the country, with all the musical news, &c., &c.
Subscription, $1.00 per annum.

In view of the present hard times, and with the purpose of obtaining a wide circulation for specimen copies of Dr. Mason's new work, we are induced to make the following liberal offer, viz.: To every one who orders, before the 1st of November, one dollar, the price of subscription to the REVIEW, we will furnish the paper for a year, and also, as soon as issued, a copy of Dr. Mason's new work above announced, thus giving two dollars worth for one. Those desiring the

STRATEGICAL SPECULATIONS.
There still seems to be some doubt among our contemporaries whether the recent flank movement of Gen. McClellan was executed in accordance with a predetermined plan, or whether it was resolved upon under the sudden pressure of an unexpected military necessity (or since these two theories may not exhaust the possibilities of the situation) whether the change of his base of operations, after having been probably contemplated as desirable at an early day, was, by the emergencies resulting from the superior numbers of the enemy converted into an operation more expeditious and hazardous than the later and slower movement which Gen. McClellan may have proposed to make in the direction of James River.

A Portland (Maine) contemporary, in speculating under the head of "The Late Events near Richmond," argues as follows:

"Was Gen. McClellan compelled to retreat, and thus change his base line of operations, or did he, in making the change, only carry out a pre-arranged programme, made with a view to strengthen his position, and to place him in a better situation to accomplish the objects he had in view—the seizure and occupation of Richmond?"

"The testimony is now into show that for several days before the rebels made any attack upon McClellan's right wing, the latter was embarking his stores at White House, that the trains were bringing in the sick and wounded, that hay and other bulky stores ordered to White House was not unloaded there, but sent around into James river, and that all the operations indicated some important movement, though the uninitiated could not tell precisely what that movement was to be.

"The fact that McClellan took away all his subsistence stores, forage, and ammunition, except such articles as would not pay for removing—which he destroyed—the fact that in his whole movement there was neither panic nor the additional fact that he withdrew from Washington is so perfectly calm and apparently so well satisfied, go to show that the movement was made according to a well studied plan, and that now, on the banks of the James river, out of the swamps of the Chickahominy, our troops are where it was intended to place them.

"The rebels learning what was going on at White House, as Military men they knew what it meant, and they took advantage of his transit to make an attack, thus to prevent him from strengthening his position; and the fact that our army has changed its ground in front of an enemy—always a hazardous movement—and while doing it have been attacked, but with severe loss to the attacking party than to ourselves, goes a great way to show to what a perfect state of discipline they have been brought.

"If Gen. McClellan, by virtue of superior forces, was compelled to retreat, and to pass over to the Chickahominy to James river, then he has suffered a reverse—a defeat, if the word is preferred; but if, as we believe the facts show, the change was deliberately planned for purposes of increased strength, whether that plan was instigated by McClellan, or by the President, or by the Secretary of War, when its execution has proved a great success, and is equivalent to a victory.

"Some may ask why Gen. McClellan did not go direct to the banks of the James river, if it is a somewhat better position than that which he abandoned, instead of going to the swamps of the Chickahominy. To answer this question, it is only needful to remind the querist that McClellan started from Yorktown. The mouth of James river was then guarded by the Merrimack; the banks there were gunboats and batteries on that river which have since been taken or destroyed. His supplies were all sent up the York river. When the rebels left Yorktown he followed them, and while they took the Chickahominy route he did not turn to the left, but he kept on their track till they made their stand before Richmond. Meantime the Merrimack has blown up, the James river has been opened, and this makes it desirable that his army should operate from its healthy banks, rather than be operated upon by the malaria of the Chickahominy swamps. By doing this gunboats can act in concert with his land forces, and his supplies may be brought to him direct by water, instead of being transported over thirty miles of railroad, the whole length of which he was required to guard.

"The Boston Advertiser, while taking a somewhat different view from the foregoing winds up a long article with the anticipation that the rebel force will fall away, and that with the proper aid from other parts of the grand fold in diverting the attention of the rebels—which he has not had in the last few weeks—General McClellan will before long enter Richmond in triumph."

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS.

THE HOSPITAL AT PORTSMOUTH GROVE.
In consequence of representations made to Gov. Morgan, of New York, that the soldiers at Portsmouth Grove were not properly cared for, the Surgeon General of that State was despatched to investigate the actual condition of affairs at the newly established hospital, where so many New York soldiers are located. A thorough examination of the Hospital Camp was made before the Chief Surgeon knew what was going on, and in the following letter we have an inkling of what the official report will be:

NEWPORT, July 11th, 1862.
My Dear Sir:—Permit me to make a more formal expression than the one made to you personally, upon the condition of the hospital and the comfort of the men under your charge at Portsmouth Grove. I made this morning a careful inspection of a large proportion of the tents. Though but four days had elapsed since your arrival at the spot with eighteen hundred sick and wounded, where not the slightest preparation had been made for its use as a hospital, or even a shelter for the men, I found five streets of tents, every man comfortable in bed, all well fed, the regular duty of each medical officer and assistant, and a degree of personal cleanliness, creditable to the short period which had elapsed since your arrival, and the multitude of cases which had necessarily occupied your attention. To the repeated question, how are you, and how are your men? the reply was in every instance, "we are doing well, and are delighted with the change."

I make this expression in no spirit of fulsome compliment, for until this morning you were a stranger to me, but as simple justice to one occupying a most difficult and arduous position.

With great pride we should record and encourage the charitable and benevolent spirit of our people. At the first thrill of suffering, they press an eager forward to aid by gifts and efforts in the amelioration of our noble soldiers. Placed as you are, chief of so large a hospital, it is very trying, and at times difficult, to control and yet not chill this charitable spirit, so that the true condition of the sick may be improved. I am satisfied herein lies your chief cause of anxiety. Harmonize this with your duties as executive officer; you will not only perform your whole duty to your charge, but satisfy and be sustained by a right-minded public.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
S. OAKLEY VANDERPOOL,
Surgeon General of New York.
Dr. WHEATON, Brigade Surgeon U. S. A.

We copy the above from the Providence Press of Monday. S. Oakley Vanderpool is, it seems, Surgeon General of New York, "despatched to investigate the actual condition of affairs" at the Grove. Well, then, here we have the nature of Surgeon General Vanderpool's mission—and we say, unhesitatingly that Surgeon Vanderpool may look his mission entirely, and instead of reporting the "actual condition of affairs," be so affected by the salubrious breeze of our ocean-washed shores, and the beautiful scenery of our island landscape, that he will, from the very borders of the realm of the romantic. Why? a crowd of incomparable witnesses could be produced to show beyond a reasonable doubt—with a sufficient degree of certainty to hang any man before an intelligent jury of twelve honest men—that in four days after the arrival of the men at the Grove, there were not "five streets of tents and every man comfortable in his bed and all well fed."

Romance, their romance, Mr. Surgeon General, so far as the "regular duty of each medical officer and nurse assigned," are concerned. Tents had been erected, but by labor altogether foreign to the government of the hospital which you are so highly extolling—but not nearly tents enough to accommodate the men with shelter, much less to put them "all comfortable in bed like sucking pigs in the straw, or like the family of the "Old woman who lived in a shoe And had so many children she didn't know what to do."

And if they were all fed, it was not from food supplied by the parental hand of the government whose bounden duty it was to furnish it, but because the hearts of these people beat in deep sympathy for these suffering soldiers, and charity found a thousand ready hands to administer her alms for their relief. "To the repeated question how are you, and how are your men? the reply was in every instance, we are doing well, and are delighted with the change." Now Surgeon Vanderpool we will ask you a question. Why didn't you publish the fact, that when you asked these questions, of these men, you were in uniform and unknown to them? Eh? Why didn't you? It makes all the difference in the world, doesn't it? The men have learned by experience, that a word against the doings of a superior officer is liable to subject them, if not to direct punishment, surely, to a course of the most vexatious annoyance. Self-preservation dictated the answer which you received, Mr. Surgeon General, and nobody knows it better than you.

If one of the worthy members of the Institution had stooped over the prostrate form of some suffering victim, and whispered words of consolation in his ears, and asked in a tone of subdued kindness, if he felt "all right," and reposed on a bed of roses, the victim, knowing that the land screws were ready for the pinching turn, to tear his limbs sunder to their utmost stretch and grind his bones to powder, would be apt to frame his answers somewhat in accordance to the "stigmata" difficulties of his position and answer yes; even at a slight wear and tear of conscience, if such an answer were necessary to save him from torture. No! Mr. Surgeon your testimony, under the circumstances, is ex parte and not admissible.

"Ruled out."

In conclusion, we deliberate what we have said in another article, we do not want or intend to do injustice to any one or find fault for the sake of fault finding. Nay, forth er, we admit the truth of the assertion that the men were brought to the Grove in a great hurry and confusion," where not the slightest provision had been made," but, at the same time, we also affirm that there was lacking an able executive head to direct the labors of those who were ready to labor at whatever their hands could find to do, in order that "provision" might be made as speedily as possible, for the sick and wounded. And we do say that but for the efforts of persons outside the government, hundreds of men would have suffered in a manner disgraceful to all concerned in charge of affairs, and shocking to every humane and patriotic bosom.

Finally, if all were "comfortable in bed" so early as four days after the arrival, there is a very serious subject for consideration, and the necessity is imperative for immediate attention to it. It is this. On Monday evening, the evening of the very day, your letter, Mr. Surgeon General, appeared in the Press, and three days after its date, and four days after your visit, we are informed from sources of the highest reliability, whose names can be furnished, that 65 men slept on the floor of the Piazza of the Hotel or on the ground, unsheltered. Now, if there ever have been sheltered beds enough for the men, at least to the number of 65, they have been lost or stolen. We reject at once, the idea that they were lost, and come to the conclusion that they must have been stolen. We therefore appeal, most earnestly, to His Honor the Mayor, that the police may be put on the track of the rogues who stole them, in order that the beds and beds may be at once recovered to the use of the camp, and the perpetrators of so gross an outrage be brought to speedy and retributive justice.

Now seriously Mr. Surgeon General Vanderpool we like your note. It is pretty, and if scented with rose water and carried on a salver, might sound very prettily in a ladies boudoir, but this is a time for facts, stubborn facts, and wholesome truths, even if a little unpalatable. Let us give you a kind parting word of advice. It is this. We advise you to try again. Furnish yourself with a good pair of magnifying glasses, and after having them duly "blessed" by a certain holy ecclesiastic, so that they will be sure to tell the truth and not deceive you, come on again and view the Hospital over again by their aid, and see whether you can see the difference between men comfortable in bed, well fed, and well sheltered, or men actually suffering for wholesome food, proper care and comfortable clothing; and also whether they are reposing in a comfortable bed or seeking "pastures sweet restorer," upon the bosom of mother earth, with no shelter but the canopy of Heaven, or upon the "soft sward" your hand, Mr. Surgeon General Vanderpool, and with the parting request, that you will please bear in mind the old and homely adage—"There are none so blind as those who won't see?" we bid you good bye.

THE OUTRAGE AT WARD SCHOOL HOUSE No. 2.—It will be seen by an advertisement in our columns that a reward of $25 is offered by B. H. Stevens, Esq., Warden of Public Schools, for the detection of the young villain who perpetrated the outrage at the Ward No. 2 School House. It seems that on the third day of July, (Thursday,) the School rooms were closed up, as usual, the books in the desks and in good order. They were re-opened on Monday following, Friday being the 4th, and a holiday. When Miss Almy, of the intermediate, called her school to order, and the scholars opened their desks to take out their books, surprise was manifested upon the countenance of every one, and it soon appeared that the books were either gone altogether or very badly mutilated. They were found, at last, in a corner, badly injured. The damage cannot be estimated at less than twenty dollars. It is a case of sheer, wanton mischief. It has not even the palliation of pecuniary temptation. The delinquents are doubtless boys, but we hope, for the honor of our schools, that they were not scholars, and we think they were not.

There was a pane of glass out of the window in the cellar, and the entrance was not secured. This was the way in which the rogues entered, beyond all doubt, and shows the necessity of properly securing all avenues of access to our school rooms.

PROVIDENCE CONFERENCE SEMINARY.—This Seminary for Ladies and Gentlemen, will be seen by an advertisement in our columns, will commence its Fall Term on the 14th of August. This deservedly popular institution affords every facility for a thorough and complete education of young ladies, as well as for a thorough training of young men for their college course.

The principal and his corps of assistants are well qualified for their tasks. Every facility is afforded to render this institution in every department, a most desirable place of education, morally and intellectually, as it certainly is physically desirable on account of its healthy location.

MEADS MINSTRELS.—As will be seen by advertisement this popular musical corps will favor our citizens with an entertainment to-morrow night at Aquidneck Hall. No troupe have met with more appreciation from our citizens, who admire their ready meritorious accomplishments. In addition to the musical entertainments it will be observed that still further inducements are held out in the advertisement, the result of all of which will be a full house.

THE BOAT.—The Metropolis from New York, owing to the dense fog, did not arrive until 9 o'clock, this morning.

DEATH OF ARTHUR W. SMITH.—It will be seen by our record of death, that Arthur W. Smith son of Orderly Sergeant M. W. Smith at Fort Adams, died on the 8th inst., at Newbern of typhoid fever.

He was a printer by trade, and was a young man of excellent character and promise. He was knocked down at the battle of Newbern by the concussion of a ball passing near him, and although not wounded outwardly, experienced bad internal consequences from the effect of his injury. Mr. Sergeant Smith has three other sons in the field, and all will deeply sympathize with him in the loss he has now sustained.

FROM BURNIDE.—We were permitted to examine a letter received in this city yesterday, dated at Newport News, July 10th, in which the writer says Burnside's forces arrived at Newport News the 9th, from North Carolina, via Fortress Monroe and speaking of the "gallant Fourth" it says,—"the boys look first rate and are in good spirits." The day the letter was dated the writer had dined with Col. Tew, and compliments him very highly, as being a gentleman and a soldier.

PERSONAL.—Lieut. A. N. Burdick of the 4th Regiment, and Lieut. J. P. Vose of the 1st R. I. Cavalry, arrived in this city yesterday. They are both looking well. We understand that Joshua Clarke, of the 4th Regiment, has been promoted to a Second Lieutenant.

Hon. Wm. F. Sheffield arrived at this city from Washington to-day.

THANKS.—We are indebted to Hon. Charles Sumner for a copy of his speech on the "Confiscation Bill," delivered in the United States Senate.

NAVAL.—Capt. S. F. Hazard of this City has received orders to command the Steam Sloop-of-War Wachusett now in James River.

OFFICIAL ORDER IN REGARD TO DISTRIBUTING ARTICLES TO THE SICK AT PORTSMOUTH GROVE.—We publish the following by request: PORTSMOUTH GROVE, R. I. July 15, 1862.

SIR,—I observed a considerable number of persons to-day distributing food, wine, and I saw medicine in one instance which was given to a patient by a visitor to your Hospital. I need not impress you with the propriety of promiscuous administration of food, stimulants and medicines to patients by different persons. You will therefore forbid the distribution of the above articles among your patients by visitors, and cause all such contributions to go into the common stock of the Hospital.

Very Respectfully, Your Obedt. Servt., EDW. P. YALLEN, Medical Inspector U. S. A. SURGEON WHEATON, in charge Hospital Portsmouth Grove R. I.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWPORT DAILY NEWS.—Last summer on passing down Bellevue Avenue, in front of Mr. Robeson House, I saw on two occasions, Mr. Philip Lynch, one of the employees of the Ocean House, shooting Robbins in Mr. Middleton's lot, and I am fearful the same barbarous amusement will be practiced this summer, unless by some means the attention of those princely hotel keepers, Messrs. Kerner & Birch, is called to the subject. This you can do most effectively by publishing this note in your paper, for which purpose I enclose one dollar.

Your Obedient Servant, ROBIN RED BREAST, NEWPORT, July 15th, 1862.

FROM NORTHERN MISSOURI. DEPRIVATIONS OF GUERRILLAS. Keokuk, Iowa, July 14.—A party of rebels Sunday night, broke open several stores in Memphis, Northern Missouri, driving out the Union men and capturing some of the State troops. The Confiscation Bill agreed upon by the Committee of Conference passed the House on Friday by a vote of 82 to 44, and the Senate on Saturday, 27 to 13, and now only awaits the signature of the President to become a law. The bill provides:—

First.—That the President, by proclamation, shall give sixty days' grace to the rebels to return to their allegiance, and that the property of every rebel falling to do so within this interval of sixty days shall be forfeited.

Second.—Death is declared the penalty of treason, and the liberation of the traitor's slaves, if possessed of any; or he shall be fined $10,000, imprisoned five years, and his estate, except his slaves, shall be seized, the slaves to go free. The pains and penalties of the bill apply with particular force to the crime holders, civil and military, attached to the rebellion; and rebels are disqualified from holding office under the government of the United States.

Third.—The President is authorized to seize the property of traitors of every kind whatsoever, slaves excepted, and turn over the proceeds thereof to the government.

Fourth.—Slaves of rebels and those giving aid and comfort to the rebellion, who such slaves shall seek the refuge of our lines, are to be forever free; as also coming under the control of the government; as also the slaves found at places falling under our military occupation.

Fifth.—Fugitive slaves, escaping from one State into another, except in cases of crime against the United States, shall not be delivered up until the claimant has sworn that he is and has been loyal to the Union.

Sixth.—No person employed in the army or navy shall decide on the validity of any claim to a slave, or surrender him back to his owner, on pain of dismissal from the public service.

Seventh.—The President is authorized to employ as many persons of African descent for the suppression of the rebellion as he may think proper, and may use them in such manner as he may deem best for the public welfare.

It will also cure speedily. Sprain and Ringbone may be easily prevented and cured in their incipient stages, but confirmed cases are beyond the possibility of a radical cure. No case of the kind, however, is so desperate or hopeless but it may be alleviated by this Liniment, and its faithful application will always remove the Lameness, and enable the horse to travel with comparative ease.

Every horse owner should have this remedy at hand, for its timely use at the first appearance of lameness will effectually prevent those formidable diseases mentioned, to which all horses are liable, and which render so many otherwise valuable horses nearly worthless.
